

The Straits Course at Whistling Straits

"A Man-Made Masterpiece"
1998

Never one to shy away from a challenge, Pete Dye brought in enough sand to replicate the Sahara, then apportioned it entirely as he wished. The resulting metamorphosis was astonishing. Dye's creation of an imaginary Irish coastline left all in awe. In order to vary shoreline usage, he built each nine like a figure of eight, allowing both outgoing and returning holes to abut the lake with the nines divided by a large, jungle-like ravine that was the property's only inland feature. Now, supported by the highest winning score in the PGA championship in 14 years, Whistling Straits ranks among the very hardest of courses on earth. 7382 yards of pure sand and hills and dunes and view, all built by hand.
