Built on Florida's flatlands, Dick Wilson used well-positioned bunkers and expert design concepts to create a strategic game of golf. A player will need all of his clubs for the varied length and placement throughout the course's routing. The opening hole is the first dogleg on the course and there are six other dogleg holes which fit nicely into the design complimenting the excellent length, 7210 yards, and the green complexes present many different pin placements.
