

OSU Golf Club - Scarlet Course

"a work of Mackenzie genius"

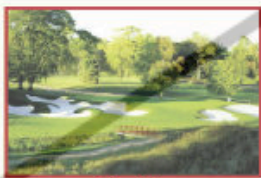

1938

The Scarlet's routing shows the work of a genius- Alister Mackenzie. There is always a combination of mystery and opportunity for advance study. There are greens that are visible for the first time only after you drive (#1, 3, 16) and other points on the course where a player gets a chance to glance over and make mental notes on upcoming holes. Attempts for optimal position entail risk and reward. There is always a feeling of forward movement. The site and the topography are revealed to the player in an interesting way as one plays the Scarlet. When a player gets home he will need to clean all the clubs in the bag.
